Faculty/Staff Highlights

Photography instructor Kathryn Mayo and adjunct Photography instructor Doug Winter were the official photographers at this year's National Adoption Day on Saturday, Nov. 15. They provided the very first "official" family portrait for the adopted families having their adoptions finalized on Saturday in the Sacramento County courthouse. Kathryn said "It's always an emotional day, but a wonderful day as well. This is the fourth year we have participated and we even saw one family come back for their third (or possibly fourth?) adoption." Thanks to both for getting involved in the community for a great cause!

Congratulations to adjunct English Professor Rosa Martha Villarreal-Mizerski for being one of seven winners of the 2008 Josephine Miles National Literary Awards given by the Oakland Public Library and PEN Oakland (a chapter of the International Organization of Poets, Essayists, and Novelists). Rosa was recognized for her work "The Stillness of Love and Exile" (Fiction). The award will be given Dec. 6 in Oakland.

On November 22, adjunct Communications Professor Dr. Istley Melody MacGregor, will receive a top award at the National Communication Association's Annual Convention for an article based upon her dissertation, "Differences That Make a Difference in Assessing Student Communication Competence."

Welding Professor Jason Roberts was recognized with two awards by the American Welding Society at the November 19th, 2008 meeting held on the American River College campus.

- District Educator Award: for quality instructional performance devoted to the promotion and expansion of welding skills and knowledge awarded by the District Director, Dale Flood!
- District Director Award: for loyalty, devotion to the affairs of the Society, effective service in the advancement of welding, and for generous contributions of time and effort on behalf of the Society again awarded by Dale Flood!

Automotive Professor Michael Pereira has been continuing his automotive industry update training at the Ford Training Center here on the CRC campus. Automotive Professor David Organ instructs this Advanced Steering and Suspension Diagnosis and Repair course. This 3-day intense course is in addition to Mike's continued regular instructional assignments. Mike also substituted an evening Manual Transmissions Automotive class for Automotive Professor Clint Turner, while Clint was taking his ASE recertification exams.

Agriculture Professor Howard Lewis took his Animal Science and his Introduction to Agriculture Business classes to Superior Farms. This is a sheep and goat processing plant where the students toured the facilities, processing and harvesting of animals. Farm representatives also discussed the history of the company, the humane treatment of animals during the processing, the economic issues that affect this segment of the agriculture industry and the direction that lamb and goat processing is headed.

For Your Information

Sacramento State is now recruiting for prospective Ed.D students. Courses in the program are taught by faculty representing both university professors and executive leaders in K-12 and community college education.

Information Sessions will be held: Nov. 18 & Dec. 16, 6:30pm, at Sac State, Eureka Hall, room #213. For more information, contact Dr. Carlos Nevarez at 278-5557 or nevarezc@csus.edu. You can also go to their Web site at <http://www.edweb.csus.edu/edd>.

Call for Affiliated Faculty: Doctorate (Ed.D) in Educational Leadership. Sac State's Ed.D program is looking for a new cadre of professors capable and willing to serve as Ed.D. Affiliated Faculty. Affiliated Faculty who are experienced practitioners in P-12 or in community college must normally hold adjunct appointments qualifying them to serve as lecturers. They may serve as instructors or co-instructors in program courses, may be mentors to students, and may serve as members of Ed.D examination or dissertation committees with special approval, and may participate in Ed.D. Program governance groups consistent with the by-laws. For more information, contact Dr. Carlos Nevarez at 278-5557.

Student Highlights

CRC Television Production certificate graduate Ben Demaree has been working as a gaffer (lighting electrician), best boy and grip on a variety of movies, reality TV shows, infomercials, internet video projects and corporate projects in and around Hollywood for the last year and a half. He recently completed a project working with actor Harrison Ford. "My first time working with an top line A-list upper tier more money than god-type star. In his hanger, with 4 of his planes there (not even all he has). Everyone there geeked out. It's Han Solo, how can you not." Demaree's last student project at CRC was a horror short featuring an attack at the pizza parlor where Demaree used to work called, "The Last Slice." Check out his professional broadcast filmography at <http://www.imdb.com/name/nm2244594/>

Community Connections

Win these Cruisers! The Sacramento Builders' Exchange is conducting a drawing for a pair of NEW CRUISER bicycles worth $1,100. Every dollar raised from ticket sales here at CRC will go to support the Winn Center for Construction and Architecture. The bicycles will be on display in the lobby of the Recital Hall during the next two weeks so feel free to see them for yourselves! Need not be present to win! Tickets are $5 each or 5 for $20.

See the Foundation Office to purchased the tickets.

A three-day celebration of philanthropy and non-profit enterprises in our community will take place on December 1-3. The ShareFair will kick off at noon on December 1 where staff and students can learn more about the rewards of sharing with others. Day two will consist of a traveling panel of non-profit leaders who will visit classroom speaking about their specific organization and ways for students to become involved. Day three will wrap up with a ceremony and a tally of all the donated items that will be collected throughout the event. For more information, contact English Professor Heather Hutcheson at 691-7492.

Picture(s) of the Week

If you don't normally come onto campus via the south entrance, you have probably not seen the new artwork on the marquee sign. Graphic designer Tim Michels designed the artwork, using the hawk image. Turned out great!
