Study Abroad Program Student Learning Outcomes From the 2008 Pilot PrOF (Program Review)

P-SLO 1: Global Competence

As a result of participating in the Study Abroad program, the student will be able to contextually appreciate, analyze, and articulate global competence.

P-SLO 2: Personal Growth

The student will be able to successfully live and thrive in a culture not the student's own and grow individually and personally from the experience.

P-SLO 3: Continued Interest in Travel

The student will incorporate an interest in international travel into the student's lifelong learning plan.

P-SLO 4: Knowledge Acquisition

The student will incorporate specific cultural, geopolitical, economic, and social knowledge into academic and personal contexts.

P-SLO 5: Development of Skills and Experience

The student will develop skills to appreciate visual, historical and experiential cultural products of cultures different from the student's own.

P-SLO 6: Attitude Enhancement and Change

As one consequence of participating in the Study Abroad program, the student will question, analyze, and potentially change attitudes about the host culture that the student had prior to the experience, and this attitudinal analysis will result in less ethnocentric behavior.
